

A circular portrait of Hua Wen, LMFT, a woman with dark hair, smiling slightly. The background of the entire page is a yellow-tinted image of a traditional Chinese building with intricate architectural details.

Hua Wen, LMFT

Asian Pacific American Student Services (APASS)

Tell us a bit about yourself.

I am an Asian American woman. I have the capacity of providing counseling services in Cantonese and Mandarin Chinese in addition to English. I am a licensed marriage and family therapist by training and received my master's degree from Rossier School of Education at USC.

I have experience working with a culturally diverse APIDA community as a counselor, a supervisor, a teacher, a fund raiser and an advocate at Los Angeles County for more than a decade. I also worked as a private practitioner in Los Angeles to deliver counseling services to young adults and families from different gender, racial, ethnic, social and cultural backgrounds. I value the strength of individuals and families.

What interests you about working with APASS students?

I am interested in working with APASS students because of my multi-cultural identities (like many USC students), my identity being a former SC graduate student, and my extensive clinical background working with and advocating on behalf of Asian American individuals, immigrant families and communities.

Do you have a favorite quote that keeps you motivated?

Bruce Lee's philosophy: "Empty your mind, be formless, shapeless-like water."

What do you do to de-stress?

I enjoy chatting with friends and family both online and in person, watching sports games, reading, watching shows on Netflix, listening to music, and having fun with family and friends.